Poznan chefs in Bocuse d'Or Tallinn

Today, Jakub Kasprzak and Patryk Paczkowski have not qualified for the world final of the Bocuse d'Or - the world's most prestigious culinary competition. It was supposed to be the second performance of the Polish national team in the grand finale in the thirty-year history of the competition. So far, Poland has been successful only once, ten years ago, and it was achieved by Rafał Jelewski, a chef associated with Poznan and Wielkopolska. The grand finale will be held in Lyon in June 2021 and the best chefs from all over the world will meet there.
