

Catering for business

In the event business there is a saying - no matter how well your event is organised - the crucial factor most memorable to the participants, and influencing the overall impression is, of course, the food. Anyone who has ever tackled the organisation of banquets and formal galas, but most of all trainings and conferences lasting many hours, knows how impossible they would be without a simple coffee break. With those people in mind, we have put together a list of recommended caterers, who can provide highest quality service, aligned with the character of the event and the number of its participants.

The number in parenthesis at the name of the caterer means the maximum number of people the given caterer can provide services for.

Below the descriptions, there is an example of the company's largest catered event.
